The RAINBOW
published by the students of the Academy of Richmond County
Augusta, Georgia

Foreword

The Editorial Staff, representing the students of A.R.C., offers this 35th volume of THE RAINBOW to the entire community of Augusta—students, parents, and friends.

As long as annuals are delivered before graduation, a history of the year is impossible. It is the staff's advice that fall delivery be considered to allow the staff time to complete a true history of the full school year.

The Academy Accepts as a Challenge the Expansion of Augusta

The Academy of Richmond County, the oldest academy in the United States, has served Augusta youth since shortly after The American Revolution. The school has attempted to advance with each era of development, and until today, a time of explosive expansion—industrially, socially, educationally and culturally.

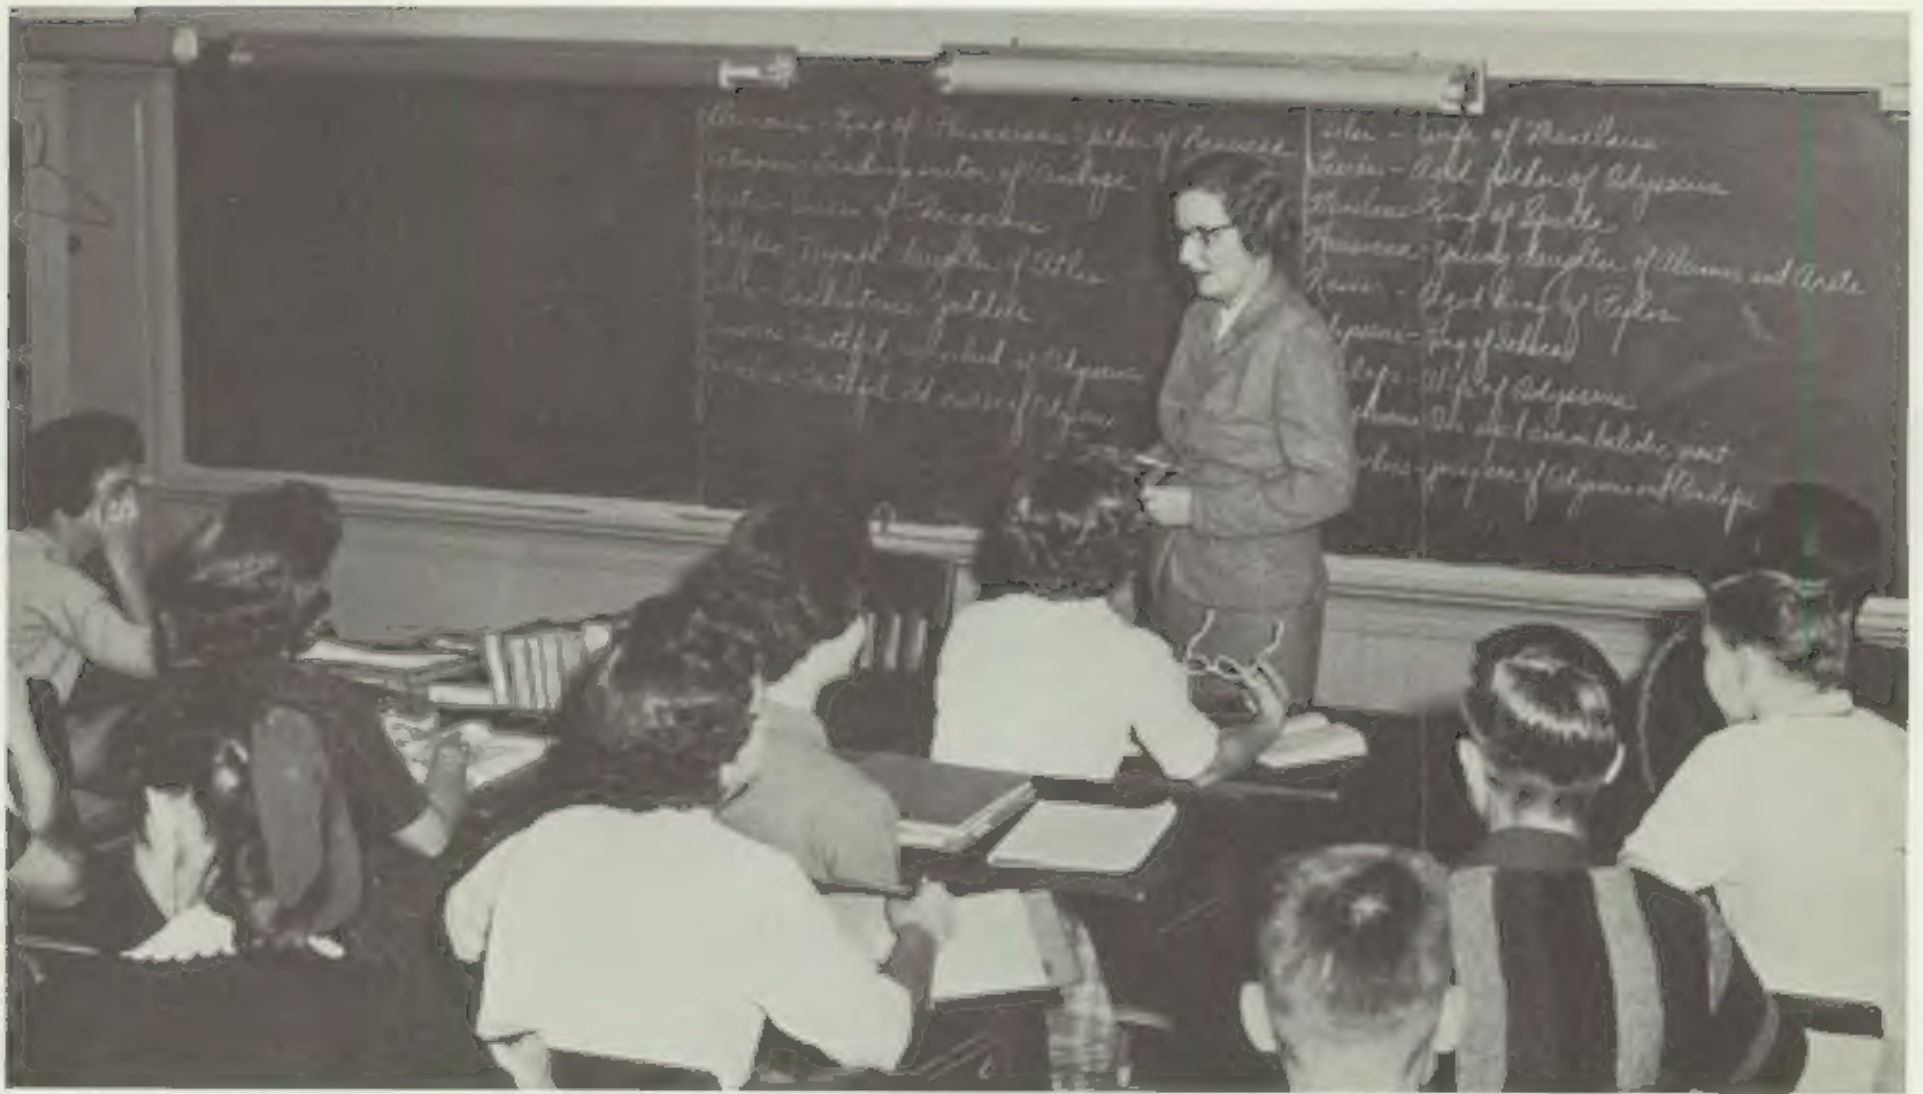

In some areas Richmond has progressed beyond the community. In others, it needs financial and moral encouragement to meet the rising standards of nationwide education.

This edition of The Rainbow has been planned to show A. R. C. as it is, 1960-1961, not without shortcomings, but not without commendable achievement—a lovable Alma Mater with lovable people, a large and integral part of the great family of Augusta.

Dedication

Miss Ruth McAuliffe

Latin Teacher Creates Better Understanding of Classical Influence upon America Today

Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Miss Ruth McAuliffe, one of our most highly respected instructors, for she has been an inspiration to students eager for advancement in this age of challenge.

Miss McAuliffe's sincere interest in the students' progress and welfare, combined with the vast fund of knowledge, enables her classes of Latin and Classical Civilization to obtain a broader outlook on life and a better understanding of the cultural arts.

Miss McAuliffe's high regard for intellectual development is further displayed by her activities as sponsor of the Beta Club, composed of students with outstanding scholastic ability.

A. R. C. is privileged to have Miss McAuliffe as a faculty member, and the Staff is honored to confer upon her this Dedication.

The Editorial Staff

Special Recognition

to MR. GEORGE DASHER

Mr. George Dasher, who came to the Academy in 1924, plans to retire in June 1961. For the past thirty-seven years he has endeared himself to everyone:

To the students who lost their locker keys;
 To the teachers whose desks were always snagging their hose;
 To the drawing students who delighted in re-finished drawing boards;
 To the administration who asked him to do quick, necessary repair jobs;
 To the music department who relied on him to construct stage sets and props for various music programs;
 To his students.

Yes, he has endeared himself to all of us.

If something is to be repaired;
 If something is to be made operative;
 If something is to be planned and built;
 Mr. Dasher will do it.

Have Hammer Will Travel

WOODSHOP—handwork, cabinet work—means artful thinking and skilled hands. Practical, materialistic results, as well as mental satisfaction, come from creating a thing of value.

Better light fixtures would help this department. They would have helped Mr. Dasher. Now, next year, the real light of the department will not be here.

Special Recognition

to MR. L. A. FOX

Mr. L. A. Fox has served Richmond for several years. The devotion of his students to him and to their work is testimony to his teaching and to himself.

In his room many students have found their life work, a career in architectural or mechanical drawing. A. R. C. is fortunate for this opportunity, for very few such departments exist in the state of Georgia, since no state appropriation comes in to aid the department.

Mr. Dasher helps Mr. Fox by refinishing the drawing boards.

Students work hard over drawing boards and wish for good, fluorescent lighting.

Talent, Instruction, Bridge!

Mr. Fox's personal supervision encourages students to try to perfect their drawings.

A love of drawing. . . . A good teacher. . . . A decision made. . . . A few years in additional education. . . . An idea. . . . A skyscraper, a bridge, a ship!

Who really started the work on the bridge? Someone like Mr. Fox.

Parking Problems Occur At Richmond Too . . .

Prosperity on the parking lot . . . Almost everyone has a car. Teachers need a special parking place, too, but we hear that in another year, the parking lot by the new gym will be paved.

Some of the earliest ones are members of the football team. By the way, it's exactly 8:25!

But Students Arriving Earliest Get The Best Places Under The Clock

It's HURRY to the Bookstore before it closes

The bookstore is handy if you remember to come early. Otherwise, you try again at noon or after school or maybe send someone a little luckier than you.

Mr. DuPuis sells everything from pins to pens, kleenex to combs, note paper to notebooks. It's almost a variety store for it always has what you think it couldn't possibly have.

Mr. Dasher and Mr. Williams keep things going when Mr. DuPuis is busy elsewhere. All of them give with the big smiles, so it's a cheery place before school.

It's the same hurry to lunch, and sometimes the line seems terribly long. But at that time of day the distance between you and a sandwich or two DOES measure quite, quite far.

And HURRY at noon to grab a bite to eat.

Pep Meetings Are Peppier in the New Gym

This one was the first of the gatherings in the new gym. An election was coming up for Student Council Co-Presidents. Later the results of the voting in homerooms gave Carol Atkinson and Shannon Carson the victory.

The handsome glass and the unusually fine lighting in the gym are the envy of all the other departments.

Attractive Entrance to Gym Entices Spectators

Bonnie Weidenbach Was Selected Homecoming Queen;

Bonnie was crowned at half-time of the Savannah game on November 11, by Captain Grady Luckey with Billy Wood looking on. Around 6,000 attended the Homecoming game.

In the afternoon, after a pep meeting, a Homecoming Parade escorted by Augusta Police made its way through Augusta.

Then We Had to Win the Game!

Students Gather In Chapel For Music Programs . . .

For an atmosphere of reverence, we return to our chapel for musical and religious programs. Thanks, too, to Christmas, and Easter. We are especially proud to be Richmond students when we hear such lovely music coming from Miss Halbert's groups.

The Band adds martial dignity to inspections on the field, and pep to our football games.

The Band Parades On The Field.

Cadets Beat the Dust All Day at Richmond to Be Worthy of the Return of Their Colors

In the fall when the Corps is thought, by the Honorary Cadet Colonel, to be worthy, she returns the colors to the Corps. Ann Templeton is shown here with Captain Cecil Nist, presenting the colors to the Color Guard.

The Honorary Cadet Colonel is chosen from the TOP TEN and crowned at the Military Ball. Standing in the back are Fran Stone, Ann Templeton, and Nancy Jarrell. Others are Bonnie Weidenbach, Ginny Pinson, Carol Atkinson, Luthia Wofford, Martha Walker, Alden Morris, Mary Jane Cooke.

Probably Thinking About the Military Ball to Come

"Am I Sick?"

"No, not really," she answers sometimes. We just want to go home and the thermometer won't cooperate. Mrs. Chandler always makes us feel better anyway.

A real interest in school and in classwork will take us to the library many times. Students who like the library enjoy school. Miss Bailie and Miss Hebert keep it pleasant and attractive.

Concentration on Work Minimizes Problems.

"What Must I Do?"

Sometimes problems are different from those we solve in math class, so we visit someone who knows. Most often it's Mr. Womack, our counsellor, or we ask Fran Stone or one of our other assistants when he will be returning to the office.

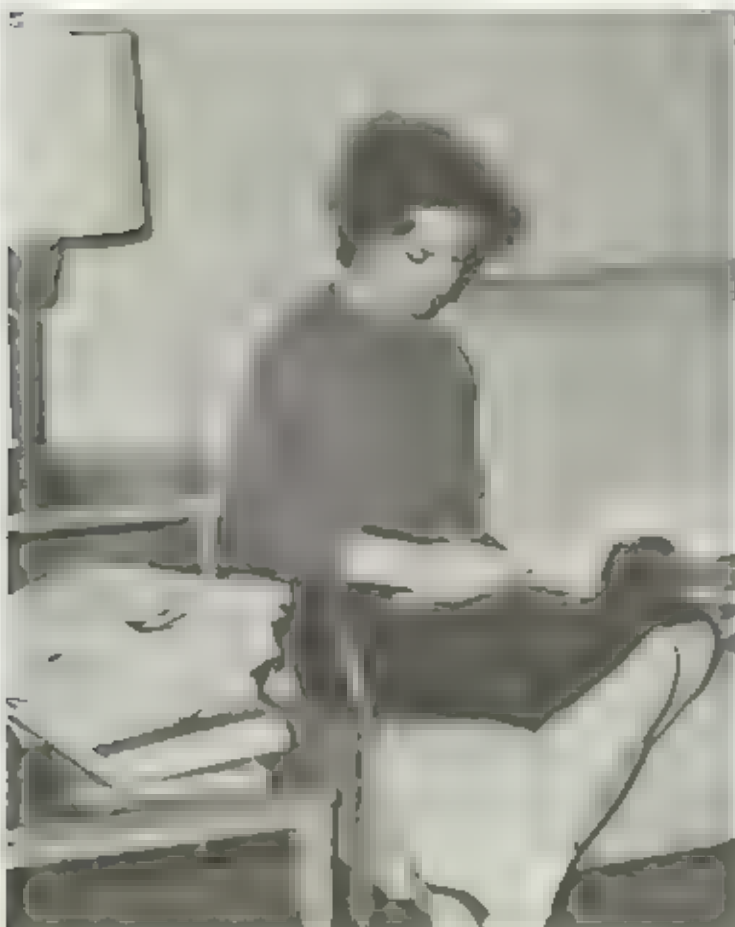

Soon Comes the Show-down—Exams.

The schedule at Richmond is full and fast, and the activities cover a wide range. The school is crowded—more fun—for we have an excuse so often in “Oh, but there were so many down there!” Lunch, bookstore, office window, picture-taking. . . . Then the extra things, like the Homecoming in the fall and the Military Ball in the spring! . . . But it all simmers down to STUDY, sooner or later. . . . We may beat the homework but we can’t beat the exams! . . . How about that one—you remember—in Mr. Griffin’s physics class?

Fran Stone picked a cozy place to study in the Guidance office.

And this camera angle caught some honest-to-goodness workers!

A Few Students Find Quiet Places to Study

MR. A. P. MARKERT, Principal

Mr. Markert's Task Is Not Easy

Dealing with varied personalities among such a large student body, and among around seventy instructors is not a picnic exactly. Keeping the school plant in operation without a single hitch is impossible, but Mr. Markert does a better job than would be possible with most people. He seldom relaxes long enough to be sitting still for a picture, but this time we snared him.

When the Schedule Begins,
It's Easy to Linger Until
Mr. Markert Reminds Us

Under the Clock!

There's something insignificant about a first bell, so we're warned by the second bell and sent to class when the office door opens and we're spied still under the clock. We just have confidence that Markert won't let us be TOO late.

Modern Communication Hastens Operation

Mr. Maden speaks over the inter-com. If he had to walk to find us, we would have to buy him roller skates. This plan is fine, except that we can't talk to the office unless the office wants us to. So we are the ones who need roller skates.

The inter-com is a handy gadget—when it operates, but occasionally—well, that's a different story.

MR. LEE MADEN, Assistant Principal

Mr. Maden Assists in Coordinating the Old and the New

Bringing together the tradition of Richmond and the desires of modern Augusta is difficult and confusing to a great degree. In the last few years, A. R. C. has become co-ed, a change not readily acceptable to many who remember this school as strictly a cadet school—boys only—R. O. T. C. only. Then too, teachers have various ideas, because of varying backgrounds. To correlate desires, ideals, and administrative expediency is greatly in the hands of Mr. Maden.

Administration Building at Augusta College

In Augusta are several institutions for advanced education: business schools, nursing schools, the Medical College of Georgia, a community law school, and the Augusta College. The newest and fastest growing is the Augusta College, a junior college under the Georgia Board of Regents. It was formerly the Junior College of Augusta. Now it has day classes and also a night school, which formerly was the Augusta Center, under the administration of the University of Georgia. Third and fourth year courses can still be scheduled at the Center from time to time.

A large part of the enrollment at Augusta College is made of A. R. C. graduates. Plans are consequently being formulated to bring greater correlation between diploma requirements of A. R. C. and the expected achievement of prospective college students.

CURRICULUM

Mrs. Rawson listens to Margaret Bessman explain a diagram

Rules of Grammar Are as Basic as Multiplication Tables

Basic grammar, a junior high study, has become the province of the secondary school, thus crowding out the time that could be devoted to a depth of thinking, research, and discussion far beyond the fondest hopes of the English teacher. The subsequent omission closes forever the windows inside of the greatest books from the greatest minds in the world. Only those who want to go beyond the routine class work have field trips through the mazes of man's mind.

Business English Extends Ability to Communicate

Mr. DuPuis also finds that basic grammar is necessary before a student can learn to write a persuasive business letter. More time is consumed in an attempt to improve basic spelling habits, also an area of junior high work. The course is fundamentally designed to prepare students in writing more adequately in various areas of business.

Mr. Du Puis drills on spelling and basic sentence structure.

Occasional Speech Instruction Develops Awareness To Sound

Along with grammar and literature, good speech habits are developed when time permits. Mr. Telroy uses the tape recorder in his English class to spark the interest.

A lesson in interviewing takes place in Journalism class. Sandra Dennis interviews Rhett Flater.

Journalism Class Takes Up Opportunity To Sample News Work

Mrs. Jan Collins, whose outside activities include both the Icarus Club and the Marguerites, shows her students how to document information on a term paper.

Gathering Data and Acknowledging References Is a Taste of College Days to Come

Learning methods of research and documentation is an excellent beginning for students in expanding Augusta. Even though a student goes immediately after high school, to Dupont, Babcock and Wilcox, or another scientific company, he may have to do research, original and collective, in order to advance his position. All high school graduates should have these fundamental instructions.

American Heritage Is Explored by ARC Students

In our day of mathematical emphasis and scientific tangents, a study of American literature is a good introduction to the study of world literature. Such understanding can control partly the extent and direction of math and science. Without control by minds with understanding, science can destroy the earth. A study of the literature of the past helps us to distinguish the values that are permanent from the values that are temporal. Emerson's "Self-Reliance" is an essay which entices a student to think independently, a process necessary for one to be an intelligent, responsible citizen.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore, get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding."

Miss Marshall tries to combine all activities to cover needs in English III

"America is founded upon a belief in God, and developed upon a desire for Independence."

Miss Ann Braddy asks questions to spur interest in preparing homework.

Through English Literature the Great Minds of the Past Raise Questions and Challenges

A study of English literature includes a study of the English language, its development of expression, and the literature of the greatest English authors. In many ways it is also a study of the English mind: a dramatic tragedy from a character change; an epic of the Christian religion; examples of thinking during the Renaissance, the Reign of Form, and the Romantic era. Here again is a course that helps us to understand ourselves and our society—a tapestry into which, methodically, we have been woven.

Mrs. Virginia Youmans knows that colorful pictures can create interest in a land whose language we are studying

"For Each Language You Know You Become Another Man" French Is the First Twin

We cannot all be like the man in Cambridge who learned a language every year for thirty years. But only a knowledge of a second language can help us to see what fun it is to live for a while in a new world. Language teachers can be secure in their feeling of helpfulness, for a language teacher is one who opens the door to a fantastically great world of literature.

Miss Winnie Overstreet shows pictures and charts to her French class

To Hasten Oral Communication, the New Language Lab Was Established in September

When Miss Winnie Overstreet returned from study in Europe last fall, a new language lab was nearly completed. This lab is one of the most modern additions to A. R. C. It is designed for the improvement of a conversational facility in language. At the control are pictured Miss Overstreet, John Thomas, and Martha LeRow.

Conversational French is being emphasized, but students are also improving and enlarging their knowledge of a vocabulary necessary to translate the great works of the great field of French literature.

Mrs. Jane Hudson checks the class before beginning instruction in conversational Spanish

The Language Lab Is Used By Both French And Spanish Classes

In class there is also concentrated effort on fluent translation.

The world grows smaller day by day because time-distance decreases with every new advance. Easy understanding of a language is becoming a necessity.

Miss McAuliffe's class is faced with translation, which is not necessarily an easy task

Latin Aids Grammar, Vocabulary, and Style

Punctuation rules are strictly English, but English grammar is based almost exclusively on Latin grammar. Although the vocabulary of conversational English is mostly Anglo-Saxon, the language of formal English is basically Latin and Greek in origin. During the three periods of Latin influence on English, our language gained a greater flexibility and facility. A knowledge of Latin roots almost insures good spelling habits as well as an enlargement of reading, writing, and speaking vocabulary. An advanced course in Latin provides a study in balance, climax, emphasis, antithesis necessary for persuasive style in any language. It also provides a beginning study in meter and poetic form. Students need Latin, but students must meet Latin with an attitude of intellectual curiosity.

SOCIAL SCIENCES A Knowledge of Georgia Furthers Realization of Local Needs

Mr. Aaron Evely makes Georgia history interesting. This history class is important in showing students how Augusta itself has grown and how they fit into the picture of modern Augusta—their opportunity and their responsibility.

Government Class Attempts to Develop Responsible Citizenship

Miss Grace Strauss uses current news in Government. The election of 1960 and the electoral college came alive in the classroom. Some of the Richmond students voted, of course, this year. Government class helps to assure a greater interest in the responsibility of citizenship.

Mr. T. W. Jones directs a study of plant growth and experience in using the microscope.

SCIENCES

Biology Develops a Respect for Life

Of the sciences of today, BIOLOGY is the one that instills a reverence for life—a touch of the philosophy of Dr. Albert Schweitzer. The course shows us the inter-dependence of life: how animal life and plant life must be balanced for either to survive. Such knowledge if retained by the student helps to control chemical experimentation that destroys this balance to further selfish purposes of some industries. It also helps to direct physical experimentation, for instance, to displace rainfall by taking it from one community and giving it to another. Only such a course as BIOLOGY, which provides the study of respect for life, can control great powers from destroying the intended balance of nature.

Chemistry Has Its Compounds, Analyses, and Elements, Too

Mr. James Agerton gives instructions on electrolysis.

Physics: Is It True that What Goes Up Must Come Down?

CHEMISTRY AND PHYSICS are very popular courses in modern society, for the fascination of the world of experimentation is overwhelming. This is the Atomic Age, a time when we want to know what IT is that happens, why IT happens, and how we can make IT happen again. For a student to derive benefit in these courses and be a benefit to society because of his knowledge he must answer three questions: Do I think IT is a wise advancement for mankind? Do I know how to interpret instructions and do research? Can I write intelligibly about the results and findings so people will comprehend my work?

A Goldmine of Opportunity Is Recognized by a Few Students In the Architectural and Mechanical Drawing Classes

Augusta is lucky to have one of the few secondary school architectural and mechanical drawing departments in the state of Georgia. In keeping this department alive without any help whatsoever from the state of Georgia is difficult. This department and the small number of other departments like it in the state need state support. Augusta has a gold mine here. Augusta expansion must exploit it, not forget it.

Music Classes Offer Opportunity For Learning More About Musicianship

Music classes are offered five periods a day for students who enjoy music. A definite schedule of work to be covered is made after students are scheduled, for it is difficult to plan until after registration. The history of music, appreciation of music, the lives of composers, and songs make an interesting program for those who feel the need of music must be met. Through these classes the various organizations of the department grow. They cooperate in giving many programs throughout the year for the civic clubs, churches, and school assemblies. It is through this department that Richmond is able to contribute its part toward supplying later members of the Augusta Choral Society.

Military Science And Tactics - The Basis Of The Academy

The Reserve Officers Training Corps program is designed specifically as part of our national military policy, which requires a small regular army and a standing reserve of citizen soldiers. Teaching Military Science in civilian institutions was advocated as a means of strengthening our armed forces. The objectives of our R. O. T. C. program at the Academy of Richmond County are

1. To inculcate habits of orderliness, discipline, respect for constituted authority, patriotism; and to encourage a high sense of personal honor and deportment.
2. To give the Cadet elementary military training that will be of value to him and of benefit to the nation if he becomes a member of the armed forces.
3. To develop those attributes and potentialities within the Cadet that will aid him in becoming a leader in both civilian and military endeavor.
4. To develop an appreciation of the Army in the role of national defense and inform the students of the opportunities of service in the Army.

To achieve these objectives, it is necessary to instill in the Cadet Corps at Richmond a spirit of pride, which requires leadership of the highest degree by the regular Army personnel and by the Cadet officers and the non-commissioned officers.

The Staff is composed of the Cadet officers, who, with the guidance of the Regular Army Staff, direct the affairs of Cadet Corps of five companies and an exhibition Drill Platoon. The Academy Rifle Team fire competitive matches with other schools throughout the entire Southeast.

Three years of instruction are given to the Cadets on the basis of the length of time in R. O. T. C. rather than the grade in school. Military Science Class I receives courses in Military Traditions and Courtesies, Hygiene and First Aid, Weapons and Marksmanship, Supply Economy, Leadership and Drill. Military Science Class II receives instruction in Military Organization, Weapons, Marksmanship, Small Unit Tactics, Map Reading, Individual Training for Atomic Warfare, Supply Economy, Leadership and Drill. Military Science Class III has classes in Achievements and Traditions, Marksmanship, Map Reading, Small Unit Tactics, Military Teaching Methods, New Developments, Branches of the Army, Military Service, Supply Economy, Leadership and Drill. These courses are given in varying degrees of advancement based on previous instruction. Cadets attend class two days a week and drill the other three.

In addition to regular drill and military courses, the Cadets are in many special events during the school year. These include inspections, both formal and informal; parades, and participation as guards for the Masters' Tournament.

Awards for outstanding service are made to the Neatest Cadet, the Best-Drilled Cadet, the Best-Drilled Squad, the Best-Drilled Platoon, the Best-Drilled Company. There are also ribbons given for academic achievement, as well as medals, trophies, and sabres, given by several private individuals. The most valuable of these are the Sheridan Sabre, the J. Bland Scruggs Memorial Sabre, the American Legion Sabre, the Cohen Medal, the General Leonard Wood Medal and Memorial Trophy.

These awards are presented at Prize Drill, to which the public is invited. At that time, the Colors are given to the Honorary Cadet Colonel for her safe-keeping until fall, and the Cadets pass in review for the last time.

Phys. Ed. for Girls Takes Over New Gym

Miss Swain and Miss Miles have their hands full with so many girls who are required to take gym work. The handsome new gym helps, but there are still problems.

Young men are handicapped in that if they have military they cannot schedule physical education. According to recent surveys, the U.S. is running behind in physical fitness, and Richmond County is running behind in the nation.

MILITARY

For the first time in its history, the Academy—with its enrollment already cut by at least two hundred students—allowed young men to choose between physical education and military training, thus endangering the term “academy.” A new surge of interest, however, due partly to a change in drill arrangement, seemed to compensate for the loss of three companies.

The prestige of the Military at A. R. C., has not diminished, nor has its beneficial training in self-discipline. Captain Cecil Nist’s capability has brought him admiration and respect from the entire school.

Fort Gordon a few years ago was given permanent status. Officers from the fort visit Richmond often and would be the first to advise A. R. C. to re-establish a strong R. O. T. C. program.

Augusta's new City-County Building

The City Council of Augusta allows the young leaders of the local schools to "run the city for a day." Our leaders are the co-presidents of the Student Council, the highest student offices at Richmond. In addition to the Student Council, other organizations, whose purposes are recreation, service, and instruction, offer opportunities for leadership, assumption of responsibility, originality, and steadfastness in citizenship.

The Treble Clef Club Promotes Love for Good Music

Girls in the Treble Clef Club meet during a regular class period every day. Each year they present a Christmas play for Richmond students. These girls often sing for civic organizations and other groups, such as the U. S. O. and Gracewood Training School. Their music is always appreciated wherever they go.

Accompanists for Choral Work Prepare for Adults' Place in the Music of Augusta

The Music Department does what it can to encourage the love for music, a vital necessity for a cultural city.

Although many musicians from Gordon and DuPont help to swell the ranks of the Augusta Choral Society and the Little Symphony, it will always be the responsibility of Augusta to provide its schools with an adequate music program. It is the task of this department to provide training for those who wish to join these civic groups.

The real gold of Augusta lies in the capability of its youth. The future of its music depends upon the interest Augusta takes in Augusta's own students.

The entire school thanks these two girls for their helpfulness and their interest

Future Augusta Vocal Music Depends Largely Upon G.V.E.

SALLY BEDINGFIELD, Vice-Pres.; MISS HALBERT, Director; RUTH SANDIFORD, Pres.; JUDIE RIDDLE, Sec.; PATRICIA LANGLEY, Treas.

The Girls Vocal Ensemble has been a traditional organization at the Academy for many years. The ensemble is composed of around twenty young ladies selected in vocal competition by Miss Halbert. The Ensemble is a performing group of girls who practice on their own time and are truly dedicated to music. They have presented programs to many of our local churches, as well as to many of our local civic organizations.

Each girl will carry with her the melody encouraged by the Richmond G. V. E., and those who have listened will share.

If Mr. Friedman had a few students with some training in violin or 'cello, he could polish up a fine orchestra if he were full-time at Richmond. Augusta's Little Symphony at the present depends upon other sources for string musicians. This phase of music is neglected almost completely in Richmond County. Mr. Friedman is qualified, but several other teachers are necessary.

Managers Ed Nobles and Frank Ahouse confer with Coach Al Williams

As we go to press, the Track Team is still in the planning stage. Several of the returning track men gather to chat about practice that soon begins. Out on the track we find these enthusiastic students: Richard Boutwell, Carter Morris, Mike Harbin, Forrest Inglett, John Stafford, Doug Jones.

Spring 1960 Track: At the track meet in Athens, Jimmy Whitehead was a winner. In Gainesville, a meet with Riverside, A. R. C. lost but several honors came to Richmond. Brigham Woodward tied for first in high jump; Mike Harbin won broad jump (18' 12"); Johnny Meacham won low and high hurdles; and Grady Luckey won the 220 yd. dash. In Columbia on April 28, A. R. C. lost but other honors came. Jimmy Whitehead was first in shot put and discus; Johnny McTier tied for first in pole vault; Grady Luckey won the 220-yd. dash; Johnny Meacham won the 440. Richmond won the mile relay, one medley relay, and the 380 yd. relay. In Augusta on April 30, A. R. C. won over Coffee County and Jenkins. Johnny Meacham set a record of 16 seconds for the 120 yd. high hurdles. Forrest Inglett won first in javelin and Jimmy Whitehead in discus. First also was won by the A. R. C. 440 relay team.

Individual Competition Develops Self-Reliance

Coach Hollisfield, Golf.

Coach Smelcher, Tennis.

GOLF 1960

A. R. C. vs. Aquinas at Athens, won, with Chip Atkins in the lead with a 73.

Georgia Invitational Prep: A. R. C. was 4th among 18 teams, with Chip leading with an 80.

A. R. C. vs. Aiken: Richmond won 368-332. David Maner was high scorer with 78; Bob Walters 80; Raleigh Daniel 85; Steve Steinberg 88.

TENNIS 1960

GIRLS

Five of the 1960 team have graduated. This year Jeanie Perrow is the only really experienced player for A. R. C. Since we do not have courts at Richmond, players meet wherever they can.

BOYS:

Boys expected to return to tennis are Paul Dunbar, Randell Thomas, Reab Berry, Eric Asserson, Phinny Hitchcock, Lawson Graham.

Gil Klemann, an avid reader; Martha LeRoy, Editor-in-Chief of the Rainbow; Miss Cochran, Director of the Augusta Library; Kermit Moyer, a Merit Scholarship Finalist; and Jon Loftheim. (Jon is new this year at Richmond and is, along with his younger brother, one of the most outstanding students we have.)

The new library at Ninth and Greene

This year the new Augusta Library was opened, a significant advance in educational opportunity for growing Augusta. Students graduating this year will increase the patronage of the library. As years go by, the graduates of Richmond determine largely what the library will keep available for the public. Instructors at A. R. C. endeavor to develop intellectual curiosity. Time will determine how well Richmond has succeeded in formulating a standard of choice.

Bill Griffin and Lyn Maxwell discuss with Mr. Schnorbach the products of his plant

The new tanning Plant

Industrially Augusta is experiencing a renaissance. In recent years, in addition to the Dupont plant, the Urquhart Steam Plant, General Electric, and the Canning Plant have located in and near Augusta. Many Richmond graduates go to these plants as clerks and secretaries. Many positions, however, lie in the field of technical work, many of which areas demand a college education. Perhaps one day Augusta College will become a four-year college, and more advantages will exist for a student who wishes to remain in Augusta.

Congratulations

To these people pictured, we are grateful. They are public servants that do for us the things we scorn to do for ourselves. Most of their work stems from our oblivion to personal responsibilities. We should be grossly in error if we failed to be grateful to them. Swift stated: "Whoso is ungrateful to his benefactor is an enemy of all mankind." These are our benefactors.

A picture could not be made of the lunchroom labor: earnest people who quietly pick up tons of milk cartons and trash that students leave on the tables, on the chairs, and on the floor . . . students who will join those who, magazines say, are making a beaten track to our National Forests to continue their litterbug career.

Summary

Richmond Academy is attempting to meet the challenge of Augusta's expansion. The offerings and the prestige of the various departments reflect the interests and desires of Augustans. The changes made through the years are changes desired by Augustans. If these are not beneficial, Augusta itself must re-evaluate its desires.

Acknowledgments

The staff's thanks go to those who helped, who offered, who smiled. Especially do we thank Mr. Scott for everything.
